Discover what the next big mobile platform will be. It's already here - a5seo ===== tkeller This is a perfectly valid argument. You are seeing a common thread with a lot of Web 2.0 sites that are suddenly worthless: Walled garden. If I sign up for Facebook, I don't get access to other sites with the same content. I will go back to my regular RSS feeds. ~~~ a5seo Yes, there is a walled garden, and that wall has been growing since the first iPhone. Just as I don't pay to download apps, I don't pay to read the news. The "One True Platform" is something we all want, but something we can never have because the platform providers (Google, Facebook, Twitter, Apple) have the ability to change the rules. I 82157476af
